

Political days at Järvaveckan, Stockholm (Sweden), June 2022

The 3 of June 2022 the researchers from the project were part of the important and influential political days at Järvaveckan (Stockholm (Sweden)) (<https://jarvaveckan.se/>).

The theme for the panel was on being a Christian minority in a Christian majority society, focusing on how changes in the Sweden's religious landscape due to migration in recent decades is part of this. Result from the project together with result from the project Pentecostal Migrants in Secular Sweden: Influences and Challenges was presented and discussed (Uppsala University).

In the panel the following researchers and church representatives participated:

- Katarina Westergren, researcher, Uppsala university
- Magdalena Nordin, researcher, Lund University and University of Gothenburg
- Henrik Johnsén, researcher, Stockholm University and Lund university
- Önver Cetrez, researcher, Uppsala university
- Broula Barnohro Oussi, lay person, Syriac Orthodox Church in Sweden

